This office is indebted to Mr J F Hill for a basket of nice apples.

Found On Thursday on Fair grounds a gold pin. Owner can get same by describing it and paying for this notice.

Elder Warren will preach at the Christian Church next Sunday, as Ed Tindler is holding a meeting at Bethel near Carlisle.

Capt J A Doty says that he will be compelled to use hatchets in cutting his corn, on his farm near Point Leavelle, as the stalks are too large to be cut with a corn knife.

Through the Record, a special invitation is extended to all members of the W C T U to be present at 3 p m Saturday afternoon as there is business of vital importance to each member.

Liberal Reward.

Lost on second day of the fair, a silk umbrella, pearl and silver handle, with name Mrs W A Eubanks. Finder will please return to this office and receive reward.

Withdrawal.

Hon W J Price has withdrawn from the race for Congress, on account of ill health. He had a strong following and everybody hopes that he will soon be in good health again.

The announcement of Mr Henly V Bastin, for the Legislature, appears in this issue. He is a very worthy man, and the country would be better off if everybody would agree with him on a law and order platform, and abandon the use of whiskey and money in elections.

Court Day.

The crowd Monday was not large and but little stock was on the market. Politics was freely discussed. Hon Harry Helm was the only announced candidate for congress here, it being impossible for Judge Hughes to be on the ground. Hon J I Hamilton who still thinks of entering the race, since Mr Price withdrew, made a speech, in which he reviewed his long and successful work for the Democratic party, and allegiance to Gov. McCreary for 25 years, and we fully state that his party could not well dispense with his services. Mr Helm followed in a speech, urging his claims and referring to his long party service. Both speakers were heard by an attentive audience.

Wanted.
A small farm of 20 or 25 acres. See Hughes & Swinebroad.

Obituary.

At press hour we hear of the death of Mrs Frank J White, a most worthy and estimable lady. Full mention of her life will appear in next issue.

Attention, Democrats.

A mass meeting will be held at the court house in Lancaster Monday the 23rd, court day, for the purpose of endorsing the official career and candidacy of Hon Jas B McCreary for United States Senator. Meeting called to order at 2 o'clock, p.m.
W G Gooch, Chm. Democratic County Committee. 2t

Obituary.

The remains of John M Palmer were buried in Lancaster cemetery Sunday afternoon, in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends, appropriate funeral services being held by Eld F M Tindler. He was 77 years old and one of our most popular and influential citizens being a strict member of the Christian church. He raised several children who are filling important and useful places on life.

A Remembrance.

The W C T U Library was the recipient of 2 handsome volumes from Mr J M Logan of New York. To read one of these volumes "Patriotism" would be worth the year's membership fee. Through a long way from home, deeply engrossed in business, home interests were not forgotten and his substantial remembrance of our Library is appreciated by every member of the Union and the Reading club.

Of Local Interest.

Lancaster Fair a Complete Success.
Large Attendance. Everybody Satisfied.

The Garrard county Fair was attended by very large crowds and the show of stock was better than any preceding year. The officers of the association, whose names we cannot give in full, were attentive to the wants of the people. President, W B Burton, sold his fine horse, Echo, for $1,000. The grounds are so beautiful and the Lancaster Fair is so popular that it has been suggested that we make a fight for the state fair. To The Voters Of Garrard County.

I desire to announce myself as a candidate for the next legislature to succeed the Hon S D Cochran; subject to the action of the Republican Party. Among the great needs of the present day are "Law and Order," "Anti-Saloon Legislation," and "Better Educational Facilities," and I pledge myself to support such measures as will bring about these results. I furthermore pledge myself not to use money or whiskey in the interest of my election.

Soliciting the support of all citizens of Garrard County who believe that the best interest of our State are to be achieved along these lines. I am Respectfully Yours, Henley V Bastin.

Mass Meeting.

An enthusiastic meeting of the democrats of Garrard county was held at the court house, Monday to endorse the candidacy of Hon James B McCreary. W G Gooch, chairman of the Democratic Committee, called the meeting to order. Hon R H Tomlinson was chosen as permanent chairman and J Wade Walker as secretary. Mr Tomlinson explained the object of the meeting and paid a high tribute to Governor McCreary, after which Senator George T Farris offered the resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

We the undersigned, Democrats, of Garrard County, in convention assembled. Resolve. -1- That we heartily approve the course of James B McCreary, who now represents the State of Kentucky, in the United States Senate, at Washington, D C. He is our neighbor, and we have known him for years, both as a citizen, and as official. He has filled many places of honor, and trust with credit to himself and honor to his constituents and by his untiring labor in the interest of his constituents and his country. He has endeared himself to his people and with all those with whom, he, in his official capacity has been associated. He is a man of sterling worth, of the highest integrity and thoroughly versed in the intricacies of State and National legislation, and we heartily endorse him in his ambition to succeed himself, to that high, honorable position, of United States Senator. And that Kentucky in honoring him will honor herself as well.

Resolved. -2- That we use all of our means in our power to secure his nomination in November, 1906, and that we pledge him our earnest, enthusiastic support to further his ambitions and secure him the nomination which he so richly deserves.

Resolved. -3- That committees be appointed in each precinct in Garrard County for looking after the interest of said Hon James B McCreary at said election November, 1906.

R H Tomlinson, ch'm.

Good Letter.

One of the visitors to Lancaster during fair week was Thomas A Knight of Lexington, publisher of Country Estates of the Blue Grass and who is at present writing a history of The Kentucky Horse. Incidentally, as staff photographer of the Kentucky Farmer and Breeder, Mr Knight took a number of photographs which will appear later in the paper he represents. Referring to his visit he said: "I have visited a good many places in and out of Kentucky, but I will have to take off my hat to Lancaster and give her the blue ribbon for hospitality. In fact I was completely carried out of myself. For three days I abandoned myself to an enjoyment which I have not experienced in twenty five years. The utter abandon with which you good people threw all care to the winds, your good nature, through enjoyment of all the nice things you had to offer was so genuine and whole souled and in fact, so contagious that the stranger found he was not a stranger, found out that he was there to participate in all the pleasures and earning these things, he became one of your great big family and entered into the spirit of your home life with as much earnestness as he had here to fore devoted to business.

"And how it grew on me. I believe if I had stayed in Lancaster a few hours longer I would have written home for my trunk. As it was I didn't been at the fair more than half an hour before I found myself carried out of myself, before I had forgotten all about the object of my trip and was participating in all the features of the fair with as much zest as though I had been born and raised in Garrard county.

Why I actually found my self riding on the flying dutchman, getting my fortune told, eating peanuts and drinking circus lemonade. Later I capped the climax of my enjoyment by looking up a freckled face lad of ten and putting him through his paces. We bought red candy, we purchased collapsible toy balloon, we saw the wild man and we had our fortunes told. And when the little boy finally suggested in a rather timid way that he wanted to ride horse back on the flying dutchman, dignity went to the four winds and I was soon cavorting through atmosphere forgetful of every thing but the fact that I was having the time of my life.

As for the fair itself I have only the warmest words of praise. Everything was conducted in a clever systematic manner and so far as I know there was not one hitch in the entire program. The exhibits were excellent, the various rings were well filled with live horses and from every point of view the fair was unquestionably a great success.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise, instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statement. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail.

"I am only 82 years old and don't expect even when I get to be real old to feel that way as long as I can get Electric Bitters," says Mrs. E. H. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. Surely there's nothing else keeps the old as young and makes the weak as strong as this grand tonic medicine. Dyspepsia, torpid liver, inflamed kidneys or chronic constipation are unknown after taking Electric Bitters a reasonable time. Guaranteed by McRoberts druggist. Price 50c. 1m

QUACK GRASS DESTROYER.
Home-Made Device Which Will Up-root the Troublesome Pest of the Farmer.

Once it is allowed to infest thoroughly the right kind of soil, few weeds are more difficult to eradicate than quack grass. An ordinary cultivator will make little impression on it, and about the only thing that can be done, anyway, is to cover the roots up and smother them out.

This is a slow process, however. Hence the advisability of constructing an implement such as is shown in the accompanying picture. Into the head of it, which consists of hard wood and is six inches square and six feet long, are inserted at regular distances apart 12 steel teeth, each one inch square at the top and running down to a sharp point. A good blacksmith should be able to make them as required. They want to be two feet long and placed at an angle of 30 degrees with the tongue. This, of course, should be joined securely to the head (mortising best accomplishes it), and also well braced with iron braces. An old mower or rake seat should then be placed on it so that the driver can ride if he wishes, and thereby force the teeth in to their full depth. It is thus possible, says the Prairie Farmer, where soil is practically free from stones, to tear out all, or nearly all, the quack roots. As they will collect on the teeth, it is necessary to stop and remove them at intervals; this can be readily done by lifting the implement up as one would an old-fashioned hay rake.

HOW ONE MAN DID.

After a Series of Failures He Makes a Success of Winter Culture of Vegetables.

A thrifty German friend of the writer, who had the usual large family, was not content to rest and wait during the winter months. He was burdened with a heavy mortgage which went on 365 days a year, and piled up interest against the labor of the summer. He declared that he would do something to offset the mortgage fund.

Visiting a large market during the winter season he saw how readily fresh vegetables found sale at handsome prices. Inquiry revealed the fact that these vegetables were grown in hot houses near the town, and that a handsome profit was made. He concluded to build a small greenhouse and try intensive culture under glass the next year.

Two hundred dollars was spent in the house and equipment and when winter blasts came the fire was started and lettuce sown. The plants came up quickly and started a fine growth. When about half ready for the market a bit of carelessness caused the house to become overheated, and two-thirds of the crop was lost. Nothing daunted, the dead plants were rooted out and another crop sown. This was attacked by lice, and almost destroyed before our friend knew what was the matter. Fumigation was resorted to, but the crop had been practically killed. Thus far the results had been disastrous. Our friend was working in the dark, so to speak. He was learning by experience, but it was costly.

He determined to visit greenhouses of successful gardeners and learn the secrets of their success. In one week he learned the simple rules regarding soil, moisture, heat, ventilation and fumigation. He returned home and made another effort. This time the crop was raised, not, however, without troubles, but it was placed on the market and netted $75. The next year the subject of greenhouse gardening was studied in greater detail, and several changes made. The house was started early in October, and kept going until the first of April. The season netted him about $500, or almost as much as he made on his farm during the summer. Since the first experiment, says the Ohio Farmer, two larger houses have been built, and the business has increased until it nets about $1,500 a year. The people are anxious for the products, and are willing to pay big prices for them.

CLEAN UP THE FARM.

Good Time of Year to Rid the Ground of Brush and Second-Growth Stuff.

This is a good time of the year to clear up any parts of the farm which may have grown up to brush or second-growth stuff. We have been working for a number of years on such a piece of land on the back end of our farm, writes a correspondent of the Farmers' Review. This once had been all cut off clean and a piece of wheat grown there. But after that it had been permitted to grow up small saplings, some of them five or six inches in diameter. Along in the fall we went at it, when other work did not press, and cut a strip of this timber off. The largest saplings were trimmed up for wood, the brush piled neatly and burned later when thoroughly seasoned. We cut the brush off close to the earth, and have now the satisfaction of knowing that when chopped at this season of the year, little if any sprouts will come up to trouble us.

The white clover came in thickly where we cut the brush off, and today we have a number of acres of splendid pasture, where a little while before we had only a tangle of brush, briars and small trees, from which we realized little or nothing in the way of profit. Most farmers have such places. They do not yield a single cent of value in their present condition, but might be made to bring in a handsome revenue if treated as I have suggested. We have learned that fall is the best time to cut such a piece of brush. If cut later in winter the sprouts will almost surely spring up to trouble you and compel you in the course of a few years to do the work all over again. I do not think the old rule of doing these things in the old of the moon in August amounts to anything. The moon has no part in that sort of business; but I do think that when the sap is up in the top and the branches are well matured, the brush is far more apt to die than when cut at any other season of the year.

FERTILIZERS FOR TOMATO.

Better Results Obtained Sometimes from Commercial Fertilizers.

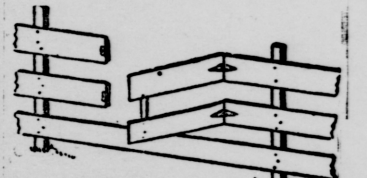

Of all the crops grown by the market gardener none is more generally used than the tomato. It is a crop that may be quite generally grown on nearly all soils, the commercial production from soils varying all the way from light sand to heavy clay, although the loam is undoubtedly the best adapted. In the case of light, sandy soils, the irrigation must be practiced to a greater or less extent. The main feature of profitable culture of the tomato is the maintenance of a rapid steady growth. The crop is a large user of water, and if a heavy crop is to be obtained, this drinking habit of the plant must be liberally met. The plant is also a heavy feeder. Its yield is not infrequently upward of ten tons of fruit per acre.

Farmyard manure may be used on this crop when grown for canning purposes, but in a long-continued stretch of warm weather, especially in western states, there is danger of drying out of the soil on account of the large amount of vegetable matter incorporated with the soil. The better plan is to substitute for this nitrate of soda, accompanied by the necessary mineral foods, potash and phosphoric acid. As much as 200 pounds per acre of nitrate of soda can often be used at a profit upon this crop as soon as the plants are well rooted, the fertilizer being well worked into the soil. Previous to planting, the other ingredients may be used to the extent of 400 pounds of superphosphate and 150 pounds of sulphate of potash. Such a mixture has not only a favorable action in increasing the yield, but also adds to flavor and color of the fruit.

HOME-MADE COAL HOD.

How a Grocery Box May Be Made to Do as Good Service as a Store Hod.

The cut shows a grocery box fitted with a hoop handle, and two sloping inside partitions, which will give great satisfaction as a coal hod, since the sloping sides permit the coal to be shoveled up readily, as the shovel can always be run under the coal along the sloping boards.—Farm Journal.
